PERSONAL PROFILE

---

I am a dedicated young professional with great passion for the computer science and information systems industry. Currently, I am in my third year studying towards a BSc degree in Information Technology at North West University. I have excellent interpersonal skills that are relevant to technical skills required for the IT field, for instance, communication skills with a wide range of people, of which it is a skill needed to enable me to interact with different clients in the industry. Being a university student developed my soft skills in a positive way through collaboration experiences I had with fellow group members while studying this course, meaning that I was transformed into a reliable team player/leader. I am seeing an internship position in the organization in which I can practice my knowledge and experience, and on the other hand, I am eager to be challenged in order to grow and further improve my IT skills. This will also help me reach the goal of using my technical know-how to benefit other people and organizations.

CORE SKILLS

---
